

As one who flies about 10 times per year I find it would be disconcerting, and a danger to my mental health, to have to be seated next to, or worst between, people using cell phones. As crowded as some flights can be, sitting next to someone chatting away is an intrusion on my privacy.

Have yo ever tried to read when someone next to you is talking.

Please, please think about those who are trying to read, sleep or just want their "space" and do not allow cell phones during flight.
